talking and teaching by doctors and specialists, so called, and men who are not doctors, for that matter, about Catarrt.; so much writing and talking and teaching. that is misleading and has created a false impression in the minds of the people. that Dr. McCoy finds it necessary to correct this false impression.

The treatment that is universally used all over the country for Catarrhal troubles is the treatment that Dr. McCoy originated and formulated in 1883; the treatment, by the way, which he vastly improved in his later practice. The fact that it is his earlier treatment that is universally used for Catarib by doctors certainly entitles him to speak with authority regarding this disease, and in the series of arti-(copyrighted) which will follow he will try to set the public, and the profession as well, entirely right upon the Doctor McCoy will give the people his treatment without charge while he is teaching them about Catarrh. He will treat them all, free, simply charging for the medicine. He is not selling medicine, He is simply giving them medicine at the cost of it. His services and his treatment for Catarrh are entirely free for the time-that is, while he is teaching the people the truth about Catarrh in this series of articles or lessons.

These articles consist of: First-A description of what Catarrh is Second-What class of people are most subject to Catarrh.

Third-How Catarrh extends or travels from one part to another.

Fourth-How Catarrh causes ringing in the ears and how it destroys the heaving.

Fifth-How Bronchial Catarrh is developed. Sixth-How Catarrh prepares the way for Consumption.

Seventh-How Catarrh that develops in early life becomes Consumption in old by Catarrhal discharges.

Ninth-How Catarrh affects the Stomach. Tenth- How Cutarch affects the Liver. Eleventh-How Catarrh causes diseases of the Kidneys. Twelfth-The best way to avoid Catarrh

John D. Knott, 1232 1 st. se

(Copyright, 1897, by J. C. McCoy.) showed the classes of people subject to This article, which is called "Lesson No. 3," deals with the tendency of Catarrh to extend and invade the different parts of the body. I will show how it spreads and why it travels from one part of the body to another.

The mucous membranes lining the interior hollow organs of the body form a continuous unbroken surface, complene ing with the nose and throat. Of course, in this statement, we must except the Kidneys and the Bladder, the mucous nembranes of which, although of the same nature as membranes of other organs, are not connected with them. The membranes of the Kidneys and Bladder form a system entirely independent, al though subject to the same Catarrhal consitions that invade the other organs which are lined with mucous membranes-

We are speaking now, however, of the mucous membranes which, beginning with and lining the air passages of the nose and throat, branch off at a point in the throat and extend by one route down the Bronchial Tubes into the lungs, and by their other route down the swallow to the stomach and bowels and the liver-

This is a spreading of electricity by continuity of surface. The extension of Catarrh is a spreading of disease by continuity of tissue. Catarrh as a disease is a form of decay, and it affects the little glands which are contained in the mocous membranes of the body. After one gland has become diseased, the next gland to it suffers in turn and becomes diseased because it is so close to it that the disease can easily spread into it, and the tendency of all forms spread into it, and the tendency of all forms of decay is to spread into everything they

Godfrey Loew, 21249th st. n. w., testifies to Doctor AcCoy's skill in curing Bronchitis.

If you take a lot of sound apples and place them in a row on the foor, and men form another row of sound apples at right angles to this first row, having all the apples touch, and then place a rotten apple so that it will touch either of the sound apples, you will soon see that the apple touched by the rotten apple will begin to them, and the decay will transfer. decay, and the decay will travel from apple to apple until every apple will become apple to apple ontil every apple will become decayed in turn.

That is what takes place with Catarrh, and Catarrh is a disease, which, as we have seen, rarely has its course stayed by natural causes. The strong, healthy individual who has Catarrh in the head, which may have been developed when he was not so strong and robust, may, in his improved condition, he enabled by his strength and vitality is limit the disease in the head, but should be from any cause income weakened so that his vitality is not so high as it was, the disease is liable to

When Catarth has entered the deeper parts of the chest its course is not stayed by Nature until the parts it involves are completely destroyed or until so much of those parts have been destroyed that death s the result.

is the result.

In this respect Catarrh resembles those diseases of the scalp which first show themselves by a slight falling of the hair, and which, if not checked, go on until every hair is destroyed and the scalp is left correctly half.

There are but few diseases known to physicians that are so persistent as Catarrh. Most diseases are self-limiting; they run their course in a short time and either destroy the life of the sufferer in this short period orelse they wear themselves out and disappear and the person is left well. With Catarrh It is entirely different. It is the history of spreading, of extension from part to part and gradually getting worse year to part and gradually getting worse year by year until the system is robbed of its stituity to such an extent that some serious affection is developed that robs the person

He Will Deliver Himself Up to Marshal Wilson Monday.

If He Is a Docile, Obedient Prisoner His Sentence Will Be Shortened Five Days.

On Monday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock, Broker Elverton R. Chapman will deliver himself up to Marshal Wilson, to serve his sentence of thirty days in jail, for refusing to answer certain questions asked him during the Senatorial investigation of the sugar trust cases. If Mr. Chapman proves a doctie, obedient prisoner, he will serve only twenty-five days, as five days are allowed off each month for good behavior. It is permissible at the Jail for prisoners who can afford the expense to have their meals served them by outside parties, and it is quite probable that Mr. Chapman will not revel in the usual corn beef hash, Coney Island sandwiches and Mahogany hard coffee that Warden Leonard dispenses to common offenders. What arrangements the New Yorker has made are not krown, but it is likely that Lucullus will still sned his gastronomic rays upon him, and that the only additional barrier be tween Mr. Chapman and the luscious bivalve or the succulent crab will be distance, which is not a very great drawback in HUCKSTER LET OFF EASY. Judge Mills' Attitude on a Police Street Regulation.

Judge Mills evidently does not take much stock in the police regulation which prohibits bucksters and others from crying their wares on the street. Jackson promptly pleaded guilty to the charge, when Judge Mills remarked: "I am sorry you entered a plea of guilty, for under the circumstances I am compelled to impose a fine on you for violating an ordinance which I consider is unnecessary and unjust."

The defendant was fined $1 and his honor suspended sentence. This action of Judge Mills is of interest to bucksters and others, as Judge Kimball has heretofore imposed the maximum fine in sin the market took a decided turn down-ward yesterday on the immineace of the Cuban situation. It seems probable that today will show no further declines except perhaps in Sugar and one or two other stocks. The reasons for this are told in the Coban news in other columns. It seems probable now that President McKinley is still in a waiting mood; that he may not send a message to Congress Monday, and may even fail to send it at As this is exactly the news which the selfish Wall street people like best, and as the bears, who are just as selfish, of course, will be afraid of it, the prospect of further declines today is small. What the news of Monday, after the President's return from Philadelphia, may bring, will, of course, decide the cours of the market further. Nearly everything on the board declined yesterday

The worst break of the day was that of Sugar, which continued rapidly on its downward course. The circumstances in favor of the bears in this stock are at the moment more numerous than in any other securities. The utter impossibility of the Senate sugar schedule ever becoming a law is forcing itself gradually into the minds of people who at first did not thoroughly realize it.

A fact which may not so strongly influence the market today, but will have ts inevitable effect on next week's trading, is the large sum of gold which is to be exported today. Lazard Freresadd $1,250,-900 to the amount already booked

The imports of sugar for the month of April were enormous, 757,799,527 pounds of a value of nearly $15,000,000. The record for April is 300,000,000 pounds greater than for March, and nearly 500,000,000 greater than for February, valued at $8,140,746 The bulk of the enthics consisted of dutiable raw sugar, of which 318,410,578 pounds of beet, and 373,943,739 pounds of cane sugar, were imported.
